OPTIONAL FORM 27 (Rev 7-81)

JIDES TO SIMPLIFIED INFORM. ORF, PONDENCE

The cost to create a typical Government letter rises every year, as well as the cost to file and to dispose of it. Informal communication, resulting from the use of Optional Form 27, 2-WAY MEMO controduce these costs substantially.

Experienced letterwriters have observed the fellowing about Government correspondence practices

The bulk of correspondence is conducted within the governmental family between offices whose day-to-day relationships could permit simple, informal written communication

Many written communications are for immediate action, are root notice and as requires a kinformation or services), and do not require copies for distribution.

Many written communications are less than a dozen lines in lengtl

PRINCIPLES INVOLVED

- 1 When agencies issue instructions encouraging the use of memoranda and informal correspondence within the agency, there is a noticeable drop in the communications effort and in the time required to respond to a request, as well as a reduction of useless cepies in file. Examining the two types of correspondence shows that formal correspondence has certain drawbacks:
- a. Formal correspondence is usually more wordy because of salutations, introductory paragraphs, complimentary closings, etc. It becomes a difficult writing chore because of continual polishing and editing.
- b. Formal correspondence typically calls for more reviews, resulting in many rewrites and retypes, and for excessive time-in-shop.
- c. Formal correspondence goes through stricter clearance channels, and frequently makes communication between "opposite numbers" very difficult.
- 2 In many cases, the best reply is an informal endorsement on an incoming letter. Optional Form 27, 2-WAY MEMO, takes advantage of this principle.

PRACTICAL PURPOSES SERVED BY 2-WAY MEMO

- 1. The message and the reply are placed on the same page in brief, informal language. This simplifies writing, handling, storing, and disposing of short communications.
- 2. The message may be prepared by typewrite: or by hand; the reply may be by typewriter, by hand, or by rubber stamp.
- 3. It is possible to achieve a greater delegation of signing authority with the 2-WAY MEMO because of its informal nature.
- 4. The 2-WAY MEMO may be designated for special handling. It may be marked URGENT if exceptional speed is required. It may be stamped for special mailing services. It may be used for classified material if it is marked with the proper security classification.
- 5. The "TO" line and the "FROM" line are so placed that the 2-WAY MEMO may be sent in a window envelope and returned in a window envelope, if desired.
- 6. The 2-WAY MEMO is particularly well suited for communication between "opposite numbers" within one agency or in different agencies.
